

It is reported that the cause of the incident

should be related to salary demands.

A real man should push the house of the person who owes you money instead of destroying other people's property.

If it's just destroying the vehicle, it's not a death penalty. It's true that this person has committed a crime, but where is the procedural justice?

Didn't everyone mention the fact that one person died?

Just kill like this? These vicious dogs have panicked to the extreme.

...

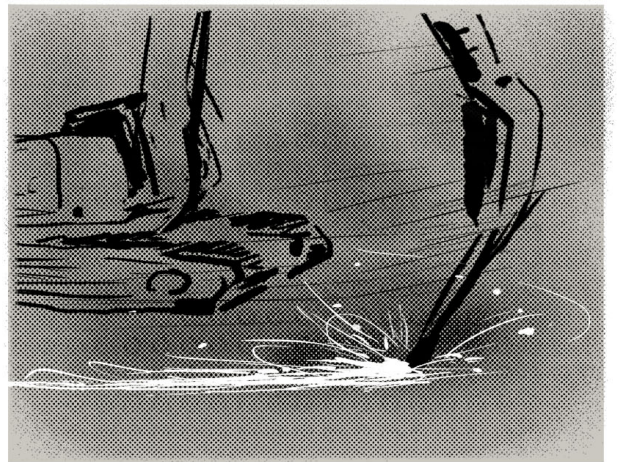

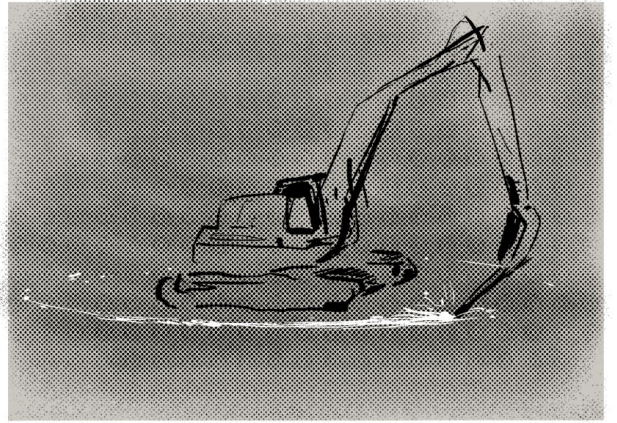

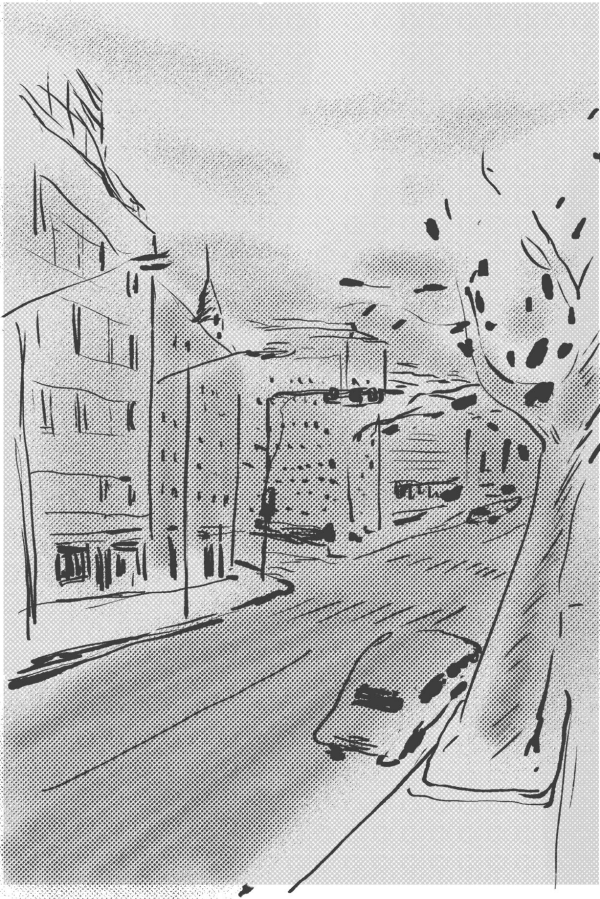

"Excavator at Work" - Sketch by [illegible]

